

Speaking Truth with Power

Seeking Quaker Witness that is Faithful and Effective

a workshop for teens and adults

February 16-18, 2007

The Meeting School
Rindge, NH

- ◆ "I'm dissatisfied with weekly vigils, but I don't feel led to block a highway and get arrested, either. There must be other alternatives."
- ◆ "I feel very passionate about my concern, but I'm not sure how to focus that passion and make a difference."
- ◆ "I want to be both a contemplative Friend and an activist Friend."
- ◆ "My meeting is struggling with how to support one Friend with a passionate concern. How does an individual leading become a corporate leading?"
- ◆ "We've tried to organize demonstrations, but it's always the same old faces who show up, and we never get any media attention."
- ◆ "Chanting with this crowd is fun, but I crave action with more spiritual depth."
- ◆ "There are so many problems, but I just don't have time to get involved."
- ◆ "If Quakers in New England could just agree, we could do something BIG!"

If any of these Friends speak your mind, then this workshop will speak to your condition.

Join us for a weekend of engaging dialogue, singing, roleplays, worship, interactive skill-building sessions, and fun! – on this beautiful rural campus. Bring your questions, your frustrations, your creative ideas and your hopeful visions. We'll explore Quaker and Gandhian traditions of spiritually-grounded social action and identify ways we can support each other in strengthening Quaker witness today. Come help us shape a proposed program of local group study, reflection and action to begin in Fall 2007.

Space is limited,
so don't delay!
